Biography

Associate Professor Jake Lynch, PhD (City University, London) is Director of the Centre for Peace and Conflict Studies (CPACS) at the University of Sydney and an Executive Member of the Sydney Peace Foundation. From 2010-2012 he was Secretary General of the International Peace Research Association (IPRA), having organized and hosted its Sydney conference in July 2010, see: http://www.iprasydney2010.org/Communicating_Peace.html.

From 2012, he is Convener of IPRA's Peace Journalism Commission. Jake is also a Senior Research Fellow of the School of Communication at the University of Johannesburg.

In addition, Jake has a long record of professional consultancy on peacebuilding initiatives, devising and delivering media development programmes for societies affected by conflict. A summary:

Time	Location	Partner organisation(s)	Client
1999-2000	Jordan, Cyprus	Severin (Denmark)	DANIDA
2000	Armenia	National Union of Journalists (UK)	Council of Europe
2000-2002	Indonesia	LSPP (local media NGO)	British Council, Jakarta
2003-2005	Philippines	Mindanews (Mindanao News and Information Cooperative)	British Council, Manila
2003	Georgia	Kvinna till Kvinna (Sweden)	SIDA
2003	Nepal	Nepal Press Council	GTZ

2006	Palestinian Territories	Bethlehem Media Centre	Polden Puckham Charitable Foundation
2007-2008	Philippines	National Union of Journalists of the Philippines	AusAID
2009	Lebanon, Palestinian Territories	Kvinna till Kvinna + local partners	Olof Palme Memorial Fund
2010-2011	Fiji	Citizens' Constitutional Forum	Conciliation Resources (UK)
2013	Syria (delivered in London)	Transnational Crisis Project	FCO (UK Gov't).

These formal professional engagements are augmented by a wide range of informal consultancy and engagement, to organisations both in Australia and internationally.

Jake's scholarly publications include several books and many book chapters and refereed articles on peace and Peace Journalism. Jake has served as Guest Editor of themed Special Editions of scholarly journals: Global Change, Peace and Security (2008); Ethical Space: The International Journal of Communication Ethics (2013) and Media, War and Conflict (in production for publication in 2014). Each is based on a proposal he submitted, and featured articles by contributors to a conference he organised.

Jake's teaching interests range broadly over topics in Peace and Conflict Studies and cognate disciplines. Units of study he has coordinated, since taking up his post at the University of Sydney, include:

- Key Issues in Peace and Conflict Studies;
- Conflict-resolving Media;
- Information Interventions in Conflict;
- Political Economy of Conflict and Peace, and
- Human Rights, Peace and Justice.

All are in CPACS' Postgraduate Coursework programme. He has contributed to Undergraduate units including Critical Media Practice, and History and Philosophy of War and Peace. He created, and coordinates, CPACS' Distance Learning Masters program, allowing students to join from all over the world.

Before taking up an academic post, Jake enjoyed a near-20-year career in professional journalism, culminating in a role as an on-air presenter for BBC World TV, where he anchored over a thousand full half-hour news bulletins. Before that, he was Sydney Correspondent for the London Independent newspaper, and a Political Correspondent for Sky News at Westminster. He was Director of the journalism think-tank, Reporting the World, www.reportingtheworld.net, launched with funding from the Department for International Development.

Jake is also the author of several policy reports and over 150 articles on peace-related topics in public media including New Matilda, OpenDemocracy, TRANSCEND Media Service, the Sydney Morning Herald, the Australian and the Canberra Times. He has senior production credits on four documentary films, including the multi-award winning Soldiers of Peace, narrated by the Hollywood actor, Michael Douglas.

In 2009, he won a Linkage grant from the Australian Research Council, to investigate prospects for devising a Global Standard for Reporting Conflict, in partnership with the International Federation of Journalists and the aid agency, Act for Peace.
